Pilkinton Talks on Issues of Nov. 8th; Opposes Two Bills

Opposes Poll Tax Abolition, Refunding Bill, in Rotary Speech

NO POLITICAL CURE

Registration System Even More Corrupt Than Poll Tax

James H. Pilkinton, state senator-elect from this district, declared his opposition to Nos. 25 and 28 on the November 8 general election ballot, in a speech Friday at Hope Rotary club in Hotel Barlow.

Mr. Pilkinton's general discussion of the good and bad points of both bills was in the nature of an open forum arranged before the non-political Rotary organization by C. O. Thomas.

Mr. Pilkinton said that advocates of the abolition of the $1 poll tax declared No. 26 would save money for the taxpayers, and would improve the character of Arkansas voting.

The senator-elect said in his opinion it would do neither. He said No. 26 would fix on the county assessors the duty of making up registration lists of eligible voters, and that the county assessors would then demand more pay. Mr. Pilkinton declared that two notorious machine political centers, Kansas City and Memphis, thrive on just such a registration system as No. 26 proposes to substitute for the poll tax system.

The speaker attacked No. 28, the refunding proposal, on the ground that while it possibly would save 20 million dollars' interest over period of years, and would prohibit the spending of highway revenues for any purpose other than highways, at the same time it would fix an additional public debt on Arkansas, and might possibly increase the tax burden.

Mr. Pilkinton asserted that some of the bonds of real estate promotion improvement districts around Little Rock would be absorbed by the state, under No. 28.

He also attacked the measure on the ground that it would reduce the county turnback fund from 75 cent to 1/2 cent, and possibly stop or curtail county road programs.

Barn Is Destroyed in Prescott Fire

Two Mules Burnt to Death; Loss Is Estimated at $5,000

PRESCOTT, Ark.—Scott's barn, owned by H. V. Scott, was completely destroyed by fire and two mules were burned to death Wednesday night about 9 o'clock, with a total loss of about $5,000, said to have been partially insured. The origin of the blaze was not determined.

The office building of the Southern Ice Company and another brick building owned by Mr. Scott and now being used as a cotton warehouse were slightly damaged by the blaze. The Primary School building and Prescott's new gymnasium were also threatened by the fire but prompt action of the local fire department prevented either of the buildings from being damaged.

Besides the two mules destroyed the barn housed ten other head of stock but these were taken from the blazing barn before they were injured. It was said the two mules had been taken out of the barn but ran back into it to be burned to death. Thirteen hundred bales of hay were also destroyed in the fire. The barn was constructed about 1918.

Camden to Be Near Top Form for Grid Tilt With Bobcats

Must Work Hard to Win, Hammons Warns Squad

CONFERENCE BATTLE

Milton Pharis, Jonesboro Ace, Is Declared Ineligible

Weakened by the loss of Fullback Joe Eason, and fear that "my boys are taking it a little too light," worried Coach Foy Hammons as game-time neared for the annual battle with Camden's Panthers here Friday night.

Other than Eason, the Bobcats are injury-free. Camden also is reported injury-free with the exception of Lafayette Smith, halfback. Smith, however, is expected to play.

"The Panthers have a big team and they are going to do everything in their power to beat us," Hammons declared.

The kickoff is set for 8 o'clock. The officials will be Bradley, Jordan, Cutrell and O'Neal.

The Camden team is expected to arrive in Hope early in the afternoon aboard a train and will then rest until game-time. A number of students, and possibly the Camden High School band, is expected.

B Team, Juniors Win
The Bobcat B team looked impressive in a 26 to 0 victory over Texarkana, Texas, here Thursday afternoon. All of Assistant Coach Bill Brasher's boys played a good game, outlasting the visitors throughout the game.

The victory evened a two-game series with Texarkana, the Hope youngsters having defeated 13 to 12 in the last 20 seconds of play last week at Texarkana.

The Junior Hope grid team went to Texarkana Thursday afternoon and defeated the Texarkana, Texas, Juniors, 20 to 7. The junior team is composed of boys in the ninth grade and under.

The Bobcat B team and Blevins may meet here next week. An effort is being made to match the juniors with Camden.

Panthers Pointing
CAMDEN, Ark.—Going on the road again this week the Camden Panthers play at Hope Friday night. This is an annual game between the two teams and the rivalry has grown each year until at present it is a showdown game on the schedule of both teams.

Favored to take the Panthers this year the Bobcats have lost but one game so far, while the Panthers have won only one. Coach Foy Hammons lost three players early in the season but has muddled a strong team nevertheless. Last week-end the Bobcats defeated Nashville 12 to 0. Nashville won from Camden 26 to 6 earlier. Hope defeated Smackover while Smackover defeated Camden.

Coach Sam Coleman has worked the Panthers hard all this week in preparation for this game. Much stress has been placed on defense aimed at stopping the Hope attack.

If Lafayette Smith can start then practically the same line-up that faced Milver may get the call. There may be some changes in the backfield however.

Pharis Is Ineligible
JONESBORO, Ark.—(AP)—Supt. R. H. Moore of Jonesboro notified President L. M. Goza of the Arkansas Athletic Association Thursday that Milton Pharis, star back for the Jonesboro High School football team, was ineligible for further athletic competition.

ARAB PLEDGE, TOO Official Promise Given Jews—But Arabs Are Left in Lurch

Final Arguments in Karpis Hearing

Plea for Defense Verdict Is Turned Down Friday Morning

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—In a surprise move at the convening of federal court Friday morning attorneys for four Hot Springs residents charged with conspiring to harbor Alvin Karpis in 1935-36 rested their case.

Attorneys for the defendants then moved unsuccessfully for directed verdicts of acquittal.

District Attorney Fred A. Osgrig announced the government would present no rebuttal testimony.

Judge T. C. Trimble recessed court until 1:30 p. m. when the closing arguments were scheduled.

$20,000 From Karpis
LITTLE ROCK.—Mrs. Grace Goldstein, for 13 years a prostitute or operator of houses of prostitution, admitted during an all-day appearance on the witness stand in United States District Court Thursday that gangster Alvin Karpis paid her thousands of dollars, perhaps as much as $20,000, during the period she consorted with him in and near Hot Springs in 1935 and 1936.

In the face of a three and a half hour grilling by United States Attorney Fred A. Isgrig she clung to her story that she did not know the identity of the one-time Public Enemy No. 1 until November, 1935, five months after she had been associated with him, and that she did not thereafter report his identity for fear that she would be killed by Karpis or one of his mobsters.

2 Billions to Be Spent by Utilities

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—A dozen big utility companies, joining hands with the federal government in a national defense program, disclosed Friday they would spend 2 billion dollars in the next two years to expand their output of electric power.

This amount, said Floyd L. Carlisle of the Consolidated Edison company of New York, is virtually double present such expenditures.

As their first step, the utilities announced "definite commitments" for enough factory orders to supply generating equipment capable of producing one million kilowatts.

Threaten to 'Take Measures' to End China Arms Trade

JEWS INTO POLAND

Germany Returns Them to Beat Polish Law Cutting Them Off

TOKYO, Japan.—(AP)—A Foreign Office statement Friday said Premier Prince Konohe had warned France that Japan "might be compelled to take measures" if the French continued to supply China with arms.

It was believed this meant possible Japanese occupation of Hainan island, just off the South China coast, one of the points of the French sphere of influence, a strategic dagger aimed at the heart of the vast French Oriental possession.

Officials remained silent on the United States note, which was disclosed Thursday, demanding maintenance of the "open door" policy in the occupied parts of China.

The influential newspaper Asahi said the Tokyo government considered such insistence "unsuitable."

Jews Exiled to Poland

BERLIN, Germany.—(AP)—Authorities had sent several thousand Polish Jews living in Germany back into Poland following a nation-wide roundup.

Police routed hundreds of Polish Jews from their beds in a roundup Friday morning and hustled them to police barracks for detention, possibly a prelude to deportation.

The roundup was believed ordered because German authorities feared Polish Jews, especially those who had lived in Germany for many years, would be declared by the Polish government to be Poles no longer under a new law effective October 30.

Thus, Germany seized the last minute to dump them on Polish soil.

Farm Relief Pins A Model on Abundance

Secretary Wallace's "two price" scheme for disposing of American farm surpluses by subsidized cut-rate sales to the needy may be wildly impractical, dangerously socialistic, or just plain screwy, but there is one thing to be said for it. It is the first farm-relief measure which treats bumper crops as a blessing rather than a curse.

So far we have tried to handle the farm problem by assuming that the age-old goal of agriculture—to make the earth yield as bountifully as Divine Providence would allow—was somehow wrong.

We have talked about over-production of farm produce and about surpluses of foodstuffs just as if every mortal in the land were getting all he could eat of every desirable food, day in and day out, and to follow a policy like that at a time when some millions of people would be starving if it were not for government help is a certain way to get into confusion.

So we had, first of all, the outright destruction of crops that were ready for the market—the burning of wheat, the killing of pigs, and so on. All this amid scenes of widespread want.

Next we had acreage reduction, with the federal government—which meanwhile was providing food for millions of its citizens—paying farmers to produce less and less.

More recently we have had elaborate schemes for dumping our surpluses on foreign shores; and when you study that plan for a minute, it appears to be the queerest of all. For the net result of this would simply be to make American-grown foodstuffs available to foreign consumers at bargain rates.

Now this new rabbit sticks a tentative muzzle over the edge of the hat. We shall probably get some six months of argument, pro and con, before the exact shape of the plan is clear. Meanwhile, it can at least be said that the proposition does represent a new and slightly more logical approach to the problem.

For the underlying trouble with these other schemes is that they all operated on the thesis that abundance is a disaster. Far from giving the answer to this generation's baffling problem about want in the midst of plenty, they accentuated that problem. They represented a national refusal even to face the implications of the age of plenty.

The new plan at least heads in the other direction. Difficulties in the way of putting it into effect probably will be many. He would be a dullard indeed who couldn't think of at least half a dozen, just offhand.

But for the fact that it does represent an effort to make plenty mean plenty, we may all be thankful.

Food Handlers Must Co-operate to Prevent Spread of Disease

The diseases that can be spread by food handlers are not peculiar to the food industry. They include such communicable diseases as the common cold, various infections of the nose, throat, respiratory tracts, and the skin, and syphilis.

While these diseases are not limited to spread through the food industry, this industry is so tremendous and comes so closely to the lives of so many people that food handlers particularly must be concerned with what they can do to help prevent the spread of these conditions as much as they can.

What part should the food handler play in preventing the spread of syphilis? Some have recommended that every food handler should have a Wassermann test, that food handlers should be given periodic examinations. Routine examinations are costly. Certificates that an individual is free from infectious disease simply mean that the individual was free at the time of the examination, as judged by the results of the tests that were used.

A person who is free from syphilis at the time of the examination may develop the disease later, and in the early infectious condition may be a menace to those who come in contact with him.

Attempts were made by the Board of Health in New York City to control infectious spread through food handlers as early as 1916. In 1923 annual medical examinations of food handlers were required. In 1934 compulsory examination and certification of all food handlers was discontinued in the light of modern knowledge, and only the dairy industry is now subject to such control.

The Board of Health decided that the public would be more adequately protected by elimination of the certification scheme. They have concluded that the prompt reporting of communicable diseases by private physicians, giving the occupation of the patient, enables the authorities to exclude the infected person from work in the food industries until it is safe for him to return.

This plan has also the advantage that it maintains the proper confidential relationship between doctor and patient, which is especially important in the management of venereal infections.

Not every person with syphilis is dangerous to others. Various estimates indicate that as few as 5 or 10 per cent of all syphilitics are capable of transmitting their infection easily to others.

RAISING A FAMILY

By Olive Roberts Barton

Over-Helped Child in Danger of Growing Up as a "Soffie"

In writing about children, I think we advise-dispersers all make the same mistake. We overemphasize duty to the child and under-emphasize his duty to the world and his family.

Since children their welfare and training are our subject, it is difficult to turn the tables and show how they must be the givers as well as the recipients of attention. In any work on children, naturally the stress is on them, not on parents, friends or acquaintances. But this has had the ill effect, I believe, of turning everything in the child's world into grist for his mill.

I must disagree a little more. The humanities for the child are of comparatively recent origin. Up to a century ago there were few homes, for instance, for the destitute children of any land. There were no organizations, "Children's Aid" societies. No effort to make the sick child well, to look out for the orphaned or uncared for. Not even any way to feed these last or clothe them except by the accidental interest of a kindly heart.

I mention all this to show that the reaction has been great. Never in all the world's history has any renaissance been so complete. In America it has been extraordinarily so. There is not another country today that focuses attention on its children of all ages the way we do here. It is a good work and one calculated to make a finer and better citizenry than we have ever known, aside from the purely human side of it. Very well then. I have lived to observe many things. One, I believe, is ominous.

It would be strange if growing children and young people had not absorbed this concentration of ours on their destinies. They have absorbed it. Many are in danger of being entirely ruined by it. By and large, there is a vast army of adolescents immature in responsibility and self-help, ready to feel quite sorry for themselves when their ambitions are not realized, or the world has failed to continue for them what it so nobly started.

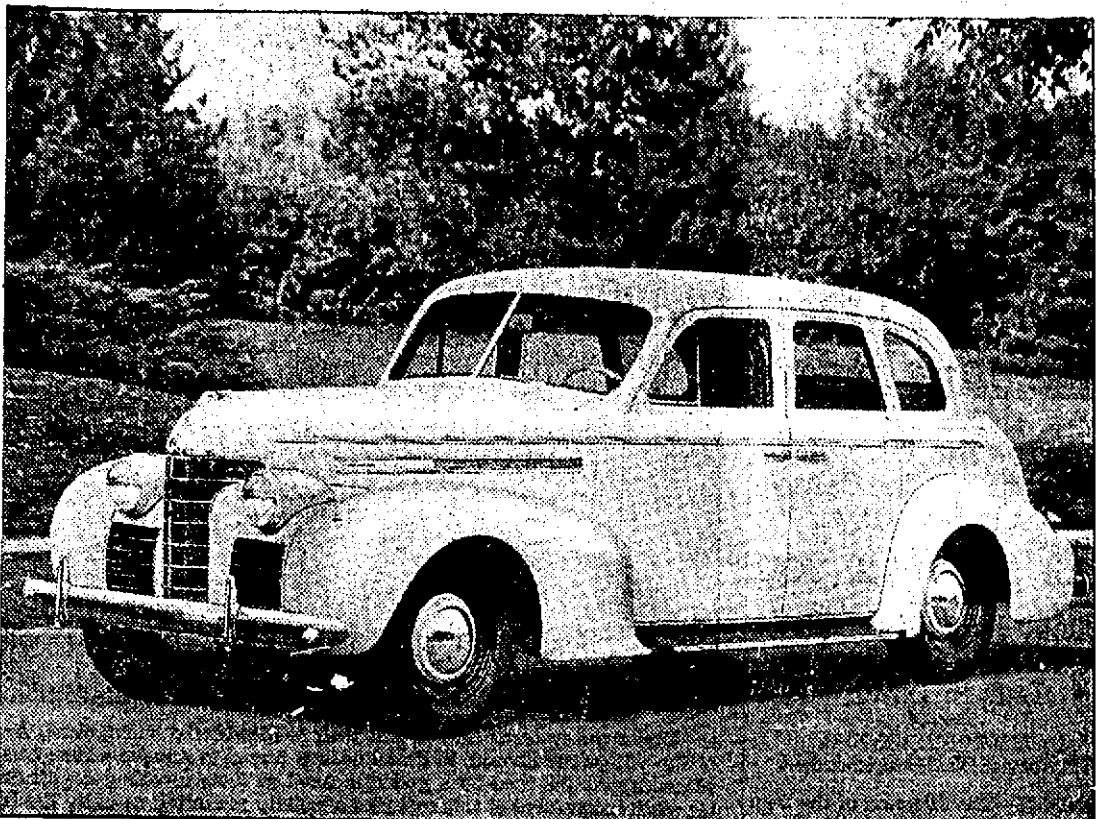

Is it right? I am leaving the decision to you.

Promotes Self-Pity This is the gain! I wish to make to-day about the young "adulter." There is danger that his attitude is more on the recipient side than the side of work or donation. He accepts sacrifice and service to him every complacently. This is softening. It joggles immaturity.

My suggestion is to leave this young fellow or girl step to right up and work. They must HELP with tasks. They must HELP themselves. They must be concerned about other people's privileges, to look out instead of in, and forget their complete convenience and comfort a little. They must not coo for money or privileges to hard to provide. Above all, they must cease being too sorry for themselves.

MURDER TO MUSIC

CAST OF CHARACTERS
MYRNA DOMBEY—herald, wife of the sensational swing band leader.
ROBERT TAIT—herald, newspaper photographer—detective.
ANNE LESTER—Myrna's close friend.
DANNY FEELY—officer assigned to investigate Ludden Dombey's murder.

Yesterday, Nelda Starr invites Tait to her apartment to hear a recording of "The Cat's Meow" and Tait is starting to find Harris Rogers waiting there.

CHAPTER XXIII

IF Harris Rogers' presence in her apartment was a surprise to Nelda Starr she disguised her astonishment splendidly. "How are you, Harris?" she called. Then she turned in the hallway to Tait. "It appears we have an unexpected visitor. Do you know Mr. Rogers, Mr. Tait?"

Tait nodded. "Yes, indeed." He walked toward the ex-manager of The Swingsters, resolved to make the best of an embarrassing situation. To his utter amazement Harris Rogers smiled pleasantly and held out his hand.

"How are you, Tait? No doubt this reminds you of another occasion when you walked into an apartment to find me waiting?"

"You do get around," Tait said. He took Rogers' hand, wondering the meaning of the man's apparent willingness to let bygones be bygones. Was this a trap sprung by Nelda and Rogers? Bob Tait would have given considerable at that moment for the comforting Dannie Feeley.

Nelda went to the tall phonograph cabinet, started a record already on its table. "I was down at the Golden Bowl, Harris. 'Torchy' never plays 'The Cat's Meow' and I simply had to hear it. Been here long?" She looked at Tait. "Harris and I are old friends, you know. For months I worried him for a spot in Lud Dombey's band." Rogers laughed. "You see, Tait, I never believed that all lovely young women should sing in bands. Now, I suppose, Nelda is working on you."

"Nonsense, Harris. Mr. Tait came up for a cocktail and to hear 'The Cat's Meow.'" She turned from the phonograph as the haunting strains of the song drifted into the room. "How would a couple of Martinis suit you boys?"

ROGERS and Tait agreed that a Martini would be a suitable accompaniment to "The Cat's Meow." Warily Tait sat himself down, careful to keep himself between Harris Rogers and the door. When Nelda disappeared into the kitchen he wondered fantastically if this pair planned to poison him. This disturbing reverie was broken by Harris Rogers' voice. "You know, Tait, I'm damned sorry about the way I acted the last time we met. I deserved the sock on the jaw. But getting fired so suddenly was a shock. You see, I thought a lot of Dombey and of the boys in the band. It was tough to have Dombey's widow give me the gate."

"Of course," Tait said. He would have given considerable to know how sincere Harris Rogers was. "I don't imagine I was very diplomatic."

Rogers rubbed his jaw thoughtfully. "I'm afraid you weren't," he said with a smile. Tait was grateful for the reappearance of Nelda, bearing three Martinis and a shaker on a tray. She held them before Tait. "I have coasters somewhere," she said. "But I never can find them. Just use that magazine there—that is, if furniture marks spoil a drink for you. For my part I really don't mind."

"Thanks..." Tait took a drink from the tray, brought the magazine nearer to him on the tiny mahogany table beside his chair. It interested him to see what kind of a magazine it was—a gaudy comics magazine made up of reprints of "funnies" from the daily newspapers. A magazine designed essentially for the child—but, he supposed, suiting perfectly Nelda Starr's unfocused mind.

THE recording of "The Cat's Meow" was coming to its end, and Nelda was about to set the needle back to its starting place when Rogers said, "Let's not have any more of that, do you mind?" "Of course I mind. This is my apartment, Harris, and I'm the only one who is entitled to be neurotic in it." Imperturbably she started the music again. For a moment or two the three sat quietly, listening to Ludden Dombey long after he had met his death.

Suddenly Nelda snatched up the cocktail shaker. "How about another, Mr. Tait?" "No, thanks," Tait said. "I've really got to be running along." "So soon? I'm sorry," Nelda bent her blue gaze flatteringly. "You'll come again, won't you?" Tait promised, and shook hands with Rogers. As he turned to the door he half expected a shot—or a knife—in the back. But there was nothing more dangerous behind him than Nelda Starr. At the door she took his hand again. Looking at her, Tait caught his breath a little. No question about it, Nelda Starr was a fascinating woman!

A month ago Bob Tait would have been intrigued. But tonight as he left the apartment he was thinking of Myrna rather than Nelda Starr and Harris Rogers. As the date for the trial drew nearer, Tait was becoming increasingly frantic. He wondered what he might have discovered if Harris Rogers hadn't been in the Starr girl's apartment. And he wondered, too, if Rogers' very presence there might not be a very important discovery in itself.

HE looked at his watch, decided that it might not be too late to telephone Myrna. Anne Lester had said that she was feeling blue—not at her own plight, apparently, but at what Lud Dombey's records had revealed. For Feely had returned the bulk of them to Myrna as owner of the band. And they had told Myrna the story of Lud's fabulous attention to a hundred women. Tait had upbraided Feely for returning the files to Myrna instead of to him.

"Well, they belong to her, don't they?" Dannie had said. "And it won't hurt anything for her to know that Lud Dombey was partly heel." Tait could not restrain a smile as he recalled Feely's words. Good old Dannie had done it for one reason alone—to help Myrna forget the dream band leader she had built up; and to focus a little on Bob Tait.

Tait hurried into a drug store, found his telephone booth and dialed the number of Anne and Myrna's apartment. It was Anne who answered. Her voice was shaking.

"Bob? Oh, Bob—Myrna's disappeared?" "Disappeared? What do you mean, Anne?"

"She went out about 5 and hasn't returned or sent any word. She wouldn't do a thing like that unless she wanted to stay away."

Tait did not tell Anne what was flashing through his mind. "Stay there," he said. "I'll be right over."

Outside he hailed a cab and gave the driver the address of the Claremont. It would, he told himself, be one sweet mess if Myrna didn't show up for Barkley. They'd be sure to track her down in the end, and she wouldn't have a Chinaman's chance.

Homemakers Club Meets Thursday

High School Class Plans to Elect New Officers Soon

The Future Homemakers club of Hope High School met Thursday in the home economics cottage. The meeting was called to order by the president, Miss Verle Rogers.

The roll call and minutes of the meeting were read by the secretary, Miss Sara Ann Holland. During the business meeting, a nominating committee composed of Martha Blackard, Mary Catherine Bruher and Maggie Lee Hayton was appointed to make a slate for vice-president and treasurer, to be elected at the next meeting.

These officers are elected from the junior class girls. An initiation committee, Jenny Sue Martindale, Jane Carter, and Mary Cornelia Holloway, was appointed to make regulations for the "goat" preparatory to their becoming members of the Future Homemakers club.

The president read the constitution of the club. Miss Ruth Taylor, sponsor of the club, discussed "Benefits of the Future Homemakers Club." In the discussion, the relationship between the local, state and national Home Economics clubs was brought out.

Forty-eight first year home economics girls expressed a desire to join the club. The total enrollment of the club is 58.

The next meeting is to be held in two weeks.

Porkers Crippled for A. & M. Tussle

Two Veteran Guards Are Left at Home—TCU Meets Baylor

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. —(AP)—Two disabled varsity guards remained at home late Thursday as the University of Arkansas Razorbacks embarked for College Station, Texas, for their annual Southwest Conference football argument with the Texas Aggies.

The guards were Milton Simington, 220-pound sophomore star, and W. B. Owen. Simington, who starred against Santa Clara last week, injured his elbow in scrimmage this week. Owen was injured in the Santa Clara tilt. The Porkers will attempt to make it four in a row over the Aggies, who were whipped 26-13 here last year. Both clubs will be fighting to raise their percentages to .500 in the conference standings.

Players making the trip were: Enkin, Alwood, Briley, Cole, Fletcher, Ham-burg, Larimore, Lyon, Martin, Mitchell, Mostey, Seulet, backs; Britt, Hickey, Frieburger, Aytes, Sutherland, Smith, ends; Mays, Stout, Stallings, Carter, Singer, Miller, tackles; Thorpe, Heern, Parker, Johnson, guards; Woodell, Holly, centers.

Associated Press Sports Writer
Undeclared Texas Christian steams up to the open switch in its schedule Saturday, wary of demerit by an undefeated but fled bunch of Baylor serialists.

For this chiller between the Southwest Conference's ranking teams, better than 25,000 are expected to bulge the Christian stadium at Fort Worth. Two other conference games and Rice's intersectional date with the old South's Auburn fill the schedule.

Not once, but twice, of the nation's foxiest forward passers, Davey O'Brien of TCU and Bill Patterson of Baylor—will shower the shafts that have brought their teams over the first five humps without a reverse.

On the sod made sacred by the three-year reign of Slingin' Sam Baugh, little Davey, his eminent successor, will attempt to hurl his mates over the largest jump they have yet encountered. For all practical purposes, Texas Christian ruled the favorite—but Patterson's passes muddle the figuring.

The blond Baylor bomber, in top condition, needs only a dry field and a little time to stir up scoring poison. Before rain set in last Saturday, Patterson, in five minutes, chunked Baylor to a 6-0 lead over the Texas Aggies. Even after appearance of rain that stopped his aerial work, the wiry triple-threatener used his great kicking toe to salvage a tie.

O'Brien's bombs were expected to play the major role in Texas Christians attack, but a fine ground game, featuring Connie Sparks, John Hall, Earl Clark and O'Brien, figured far better than Baylor's.

Few doubted that TCU's power and versatility would submerge Baylor, but not without a Bruin touchdown or two.

At College Station the Texas Aggies, sporting a brand new power attack centered around Sophomore John Kimbrough, 210-pounder who pounded through Baylor Saturday last, entertains the visiting Arkansas Razorbacks, a pass crazy team that also has surprised with a running game. Both will be injured—the Aggies because of Kimbrough's smashing scrimmage play that sent three of his own mates, Guard Bill Minnock and Tackles Joe Boyd and George Bransom to the hospital. Arkansas, sensational even in defeat by Santa Clara last week, will be suffering from lack of guards.

The Texas Longhorns, that pawed furiously and charged almost to its first triumph against Rice last week, will be eyeing Southern Methodist as likely prey in their Austin game. However, the Mustangs, victims of their own fumbles in a 34-7 crushing by Pitt, planned to open their conference titular bid by handing Texas its sixth straight setback.

On the sidelines with ankle injuries will be Ernie Dain, Rice's big jolter, when the Owls meet Auburn at Houston. But Doug (Scott) Sullivan, his 155-pound understudy who has played brilliantly in two appearances, will start in his stead. Coach Jim Kitts will be plugging several important holes with subs against a team coached by the former Rice mentor, Jack Mcgaher.

Leaf Burning

I swept the fallen leaves up yesterday
And touched them with slow fire;
And as I saw smoke rise and drift away
I knew a keen desire
To sweep my mind of old things lying there:
Dreams long since dead . . .
Hopes that have clung, like leaves on boughs now bare,
And fears that I have shed . . .
I longed to gather every little grief
Small doubts and fears, and lay them
in a sheaf
On fire, smoke crowned;
Then stir the embers so a laughing
wind
Might lift the ashes of old praise and blame
And bear them far away, leaving my mind
Clean as if swept by flame.

A very delightful and beautifully planned social affair of the week was the tea from three to five Thursday afternoon given by Mrs. E. F. McFaddin for the pleasure of her mother, Mrs. M. M. McFaddin of Fort Worth, Texas. For the occasion the "Honey" McFaddin home with its "living joys and pleasures" had an added beauty in the profusion of lovely fall flowers expressing a colorful greeting from every point of vantage. Greeting the guests were Mrs. Johnny McCabe assisted by little Miss Margaret Sue McFaddin, Mrs. Roy Anderson directed the guests into the reception room where they were met by Mrs. McFaddin and the honoree, Mrs. McFaddin. Assisting in the courtesies in the reception room were Mrs. J. T. West, Mrs. Jack Broyles and Mrs. J. Patrick Duffie. The dining room was most attractive with its decorations of lovely fall flowers, including dahlias and button chrysanthemums. The table was laid with an exquisite Normandy lace cloth, the work of Mrs. McFaddin's mother, and a handsome floral center of lovely pink radiance roses and fern, flanked by tall pink candles in silver holders, the confections were in pink and white. Alternating at the massive silver tea service and the salad platter were Mrs. Dorsey McRae, Mrs. Sid Henry, Mrs. Ross R. Gillespie and Mrs. R. M. McGraw. Assisting in the dining room courtesies were Mrs. Ruth White, Mrs. T. S. McDavitt and Mrs. John P. Vesey.

The Extent of Personal Rights
Text: Ecclesiastes 2:1-3, 10, 11;
Romans 6:17-23, 14:21

The question of personal rights and preferences in relation to social liberty and social welfare is one that has been persistent in every age. It has become increasingly complex under the conditions of modern civilization, but a book like the Bible—coming out of ancient times—reveals the extent to which it has always been emphasized.

What are the limits of personal liberty, and even where these liberties are well defined and approved, to what extent by voluntary action, should the individual refrain from exercising the fullness of his liberty because of the possible effect of his conduct on other people or because of the influence of his example?

There is no uniform answer to the questions which arise. It is easy to lay down general principles, but it is not so easy to apply these in every case—and there is a wide range of conduct in which the individual must be free to choose his own course; otherwise, his conduct would be one of compulsion rather than of liberty.

It seems clear that the individual has no right to liberties which infringe upon similar liberties of other people. Such liberties, exercised by individuals, become matters of special privilege.

Dimly and slowly, but apparently surely, modern communities are recognizing this. The ruthless individualism, which yesterday was associated with individual right and liberties, tends to become a thing of the past. We no longer recognize the right of an individual to pursue his own course with disregard of the effect of that course upon the rights and interests of his fellowmen.

But a difficult problem arises, because undue regulation and regimentation mean the breaking down of initiative and the destruction of personal liberty if they are pushed too far. What is necessary is that men should see the problem of the attainment of liberty from both angles, and should develop a proper balance between the rights and liberties of the individual and the welfare of society as a whole.

It is of no value to develop large liberty on the part of a few individuals which is used and exercised to make vast numbers of their fellowmen virtual slaves. On the other hand, all individuals become virtual slaves if they live under a society where the individual has no rights and privileges at all.

Religion, as our lesson suggests, ought to have something to do with these issues; in fact, the Christian religion has a great deal to do with them.

Christianity lays profound emphasis upon the love of man to man. It is a religion which, when it is truly believed and followed, enjoins upon every individual who accepts it the law of consideration for his fellowmen. The Christian experience brings to the individual a great sense of freedom. Nothing is more evident than that in the history of Christian experience. But this freedom becomes exercised in wise self-restraint, action, and good judgment.

Paul understood this very well, and wrote of it rather plainly when he discussed such questions in the early religious communities as the eating of meat offered to idols.

The course which Paul enjoined seemed wise and good, though it ought to be emphasized that there is a limit to the practice which Paul followed. When a man of weak and tender conscience becomes a prejudiced bully, judging other men with narrowness and harshness, it is conceivable that it might become a Christian duty to assert and practice the fullness of Christian liberty instead of weakly submitting to prejudice.

The Christian individual must determine these things for himself, and we must be reluctant about judging one another in the manifold questions that arise concerning the details of conduct.

Bethlehem and a corridor to the sea. Neither the Jews nor the Arabs were satisfied with this scheme. There have been rumors that the British cabinet is now considering an even more drastic solution which would be very much in favor of the Arabs. The very rumor of it has aroused the American government to make pointed inquiries to Britain, as the United States is a sort of disinterested party to the mandate. Besides, American money has poured into Palestine to help the Zionists.

Zionist Jews are standing pat on the Balmorale promise. They say they need Palestine more than ever, because of the persecution of their co-religionists in Germany and Italy, with only a lesser persecution in other European states.

The Solution
The rest of the argument runs thus: The Arabs: "England has broken its promise to us about Palestine."
The Jews: "England as a state, made the promise to the Jews. Only some army officers, without backing of their government, made the promise to the Arabs. The war, which broke Turkey, has given the Arabs Iraq, Arabia and Transjordan—lands enormously larger and richer in resources than little Palestine."

The Arabs: "The Jews, with their money, are buying the choice lands and making Arabs poor and landless."
The Jews: "Fifty-three per cent of the 320,000 acres we hold have been bought from absentee landlords and 25 per cent from rich Arab landholders. Much of the land we got was barren and was made fertile only by our labor."

The Arab: "Even with immigration of Jews restricted partially, the Arab majority is apt to be swamped and become a minority."
The Jews: "In 1918 there were in Palestine 55,000 Jews and 500,000 Arabs. Today there are 400,000 Jews and 900,000 Arabs. By our labor and by our modern methods we have shown how things can be done. In spite of the vast areas in other Arab lands, Arabs have moved into Palestine in swarms, having learned their agricultural and industrial lessons from us. In 1918 there were 6000 acres of orange groves. Now there are over 32,000 acres. In 1920 Palestine exported 1,000,000 cases of oranges and grapefruit. In 1936-7 it exported 11,000,000 cases."

In the meantime, the Arabs openly admit they are employing terror "because that is the way to win things from England." It is strongly suspected that German and Italian money has its part in financing the uprisings. Hitler recently sneered at England's failure to settle the Palestine trouble. England has been slow to take too drastic action, because of the millions of Moslem subjects in its empire.

Governor Charges Retaliation for "Firing" of Rooksbury

LITTLE ROCK.—(P)—State Works Progress Administrator Floyd Sharp, charged by Governor Bailey with instigating a program of reprisal against the state administration as a result of the replacement of Unemployment Compensation Director W. A. Rooksbury, said Friday that the policy of the WPA was to "be fair to all sponsoring projects."

The Arkansas Democrat said Friday it had heard that Governor Bailey's charges of reprisals by the WPA were "due to the efforts of the administration to make good on certain road projects promised in several counties."

State Teachers in Win Over Reddies
Luckless Arkadelphia Team Is Shutout by 20 to 0 Score

CONWAY, Ark.—(P)—Taking the air to score twice in the second quarter and driving 90 yards to tally in three plays in the third, Arkansas State Teachers College registered a 20-0 victory over the Henderson State Teachers from Arkadelphia here Thursday night at Estes Field.

Furnishing the Conway Bears their first state opposition of the year on their newly lighted gridiron, the luckless Henderson club battered its way 84 yards to the one yard line in the second period for their only serious scoring threat of the evening.

Heath, ace Bear back stood on the 50-yard line and heaved a pass to Estes, good for 40 yards and the first marker. The Bears struck quickly again as the Bears recovered Feeley's fumble on the Henderson 24. Baldrige reversed for five yards and then passed to Estes in the end zone for the marker. Turner converted the extra points with placements.

In the third quarter, Patrick, Bear fullback and ground gaining star of the evening, raced 57 yards before being pulled down on the 11 yard line. Baldrige took the ball over on the next play. His try for placement was wide.

The Bears went to the Henderson three yard mark in the opening period but the Reddies braced and held them for downs.

Heath, Baldrige, Patrick, Estes, Russell and Turner turned in fine performances for the Bears while Tollet, Turner and Feeley accounted for most of the 106 yards gained from scrimmage by the Reddies. The Bears gained 248 yards on the ground and picked up 106 more with five completed passes.

women, filled every available seat. Judge Warren Crisp presided over the testimony, which was brought several times from the crowd, causing Federal Judge Trimble to assert:

"This is not a show. I will put a fine on any one who laughs in the court."

Mrs. Goldstein appeared in court with Lawyer Sam Robinson, who the day before had succeeded in obtaining a directed verdict of not guilty for John Stover, manager of the Hot Springs airport, one of seven persons being tried on the charge of conspiracy to harbor Karpis, James H. Campbell of Hot Springs had been Mrs. Goldstein's son.

Paid Her $200 a Week
In answer to questions by Mr. Robinson, Mrs. Goldstein testified that when Karpis first came to her house of prostitution in June, 1935, he agreed to pay her $200 a week and to take care of additional expenses in exchange "for her time."

Mrs. Goldstein said she was "going steady" at the time with a 66-year-old man whom she described as "very prominent" and that she did not want to give him up unless Karpis would make it worth her while.

"What was the relation between you and Karpis?" the district attorney asked.

"I was his common law wife," she replied.

"What did he pay you?"
"I got a whole lot. I spent all I wanted to."

"Did you spend as much as $20,000?"
"I probably did, but I cannot say for sure."

Mr. Isgrig resumed this line of questioning later in the day, asking her what she did with the $20,000 that Karpis gave her.

"I spent it," she said, "I made trips, lots of trips."

"What kind of services would you render Karpis in exchange for the $20,000?" the district attorney inquired.

"Keep him company," she replied.
"Do you mean to say that this gangster paid you $20,000 for the privilege of associating with you?" the district attorney demanded.

"He certainly did," Mrs. Goldstein retorted.
"Who did you split the money with?" Mr. Isgrig inquired.

"I spent it on myself," she replied.

CONWAY, Ark.—(P)—Taking the air to score twice in the second quarter and driving 90 yards to tally in three plays in the third, Arkansas State Teachers College registered a 20-0 victory over the Henderson State Teachers from Arkadelphia here Thursday night at Estes Field.

Furnishing the Conway Bears their first state opposition of the year on their newly lighted gridiron, the luckless Henderson club battered its way 84 yards to the one yard line in the second period for their only serious scoring threat of the evening.

Heath, ace Bear back stood on the 50-yard line and heaved a pass to Estes, good for 40 yards and the first marker. The Bears struck quickly again as the Bears recovered Feeley's fumble on the Henderson 24. Baldrige reversed for five yards and then passed to Estes in the end zone for the marker. Turner converted the extra points with placements.

In the third quarter, Patrick, Bear fullback and ground gaining star of the evening, raced 57 yards before being pulled down on the 11 yard line. Baldrige took the ball over on the next play. His try for placement was wide.

The Bears went to the Henderson three yard mark in the opening period but the Reddies braced and held them for downs.

Heath, Baldrige, Patrick, Estes, Russell and Turner turned in fine performances for the Bears while Tollet, Turner and Feeley accounted for most of the 106 yards gained from scrimmage by the Reddies. The Bears gained 248 yards on the ground and picked up 106 more with five completed passes.

women, filled every available seat. Judge Warren Crisp presided over the testimony, which was brought several times from the crowd, causing Federal Judge Trimble to assert:

"This is not a show. I will put a fine on any one who laughs in the court."

Mrs. Goldstein appeared in court with Lawyer Sam Robinson, who the day before had succeeded in obtaining a directed verdict of not guilty for John Stover, manager of the Hot Springs airport, one of seven persons being tried on the charge of conspiracy to harbor Karpis, James H. Campbell of Hot Springs had been Mrs. Goldstein's son.

Paid Her $200 a Week
In answer to questions by Mr. Robinson, Mrs. Goldstein testified that when Karpis first came to her house of prostitution in June, 1935, he agreed to pay her $200 a week and to take care of additional expenses in exchange "for her time."

Mrs. Goldstein said she was "going steady" at the time with a 66-year-old man whom she described as "very prominent" and that she did not want to give him up unless Karpis would make it worth her while.

"What was the relation between you and Karpis?" the district attorney asked.

"I was his common law wife," she replied.

"What did he pay you?"
"I got a whole lot. I spent all I wanted to."

"Did you spend as much as $20,000?"
"I probably did, but I cannot say for sure."

Mr. Isgrig resumed this line of questioning later in the day, asking her what she did with the $20,000 that Karpis gave her.

"I spent it," she said, "I made trips, lots of trips."

"What kind of services would you render Karpis in exchange for the $20,000?" the district attorney inquired.

"Keep him company," she replied.
"Do you mean to say that this gangster paid you $20,000 for the privilege of associating with you?" the district attorney demanded.

"He certainly did," Mrs. Goldstein retorted.
"Who did you split the money with?" Mr. Isgrig inquired.

"I spent it on myself," she replied.

4. Extension of the areas of governmental control.

His Hens Can Lay Green-Yolked Eggs

TOPEKA, Kans.—(AP)—Walter Laundon can make his hens lay yellow, red or green yolks in their eggs.
Shorting a hen on her grain ration and feeding her green vegetables makes the yolks green. An abundance of carrots in the diet makes yolks more yellow than they should be. Red yolks come from diets of chemically treated grains.
All the yolks taste about the same, said Laundon.
